Shall the importation and the bringing of intoxicating liquors into the Province be forbidden? No

Shall the importation and the bringing of intoxicating liquors into the Province be forbidden? Yes X

BE SURE AND MARK YOUR BALLOT AFTER THE "YES."

In rural districts such as this the work of preparing the voters' list is in the hands of enumerators appointed locally. Make it your business to see that your name is on the list. The enumerator shall post his list at least six days prior to October 12th., and from the 12th. to the 15th. it will still be possible to get in before the final hour of appeal gets past.

H. E. Elves is the enumerator for the territory served by the Lomond polling booth. Lock up the enumerator in your own respective districts.

The first prohibition meeting in this neighborhood was held at Travers on Sept. 17th. A good attendance was registered, representative of several sections of the community and much interest was shown in the coming plebescite on prohibition.

Mrs. Bagnall of Medicine Hat and Rev. H. Bosworth of Coaldale addressed the meeting. The speakers pointed out the necessity for all prohibition sympathizers to note the date of revision of the voters' list, Oct. 12th. to 15th., and

The Strength of Law

It's ludicrous how some of us think that a law is a panacea for any or all wrongs. "There should be a law passed forbidding such things," we cry, wholly ignoring the fact that if all the laws now on the statute books were enforced to the letter, we should all probably be in jail.

We should realize that laws are no stronger than the public sentiment behind them. No group or clique of persons engrossed in one subject to the exclusion of all else, can positively bring about their heart's desire, unless they can first arouse so many others to a belief in what they are proclaiming that a resistless force is backing them up. The reform may be a worthy one, but that does not alter the result. It is almost tragic the way some of us think that because a thing is fundamentally just, we can easily bring it about.

If we had but the forces of nature or right to deal with, such might be the result of our efforts. But we have human nature against which to contend, and entrenched wrong is generally strongly entrenched, having called to its aid not only honest methods but those more subtle than straightforward to help in the fight. Wrong may be overdone, but often progress is slow. We may not go to battle unprepared.

If bravery and faith were all that is required, the dire failures which line the path of life would not be so numerous. We cannot always match brute force with force. The quickest way, we think, often proves to be the longest. Without the wisdom of the serpent our best efforts go for naught. We have to take the world and peoples as they are—not as they should be.

NOTES

We have been keeping an eye on the Lomond stores of late and we believe they are getting more than their usual ratio of trade in proportion to the current wealth of the people. We believe that this is the result of two important factors that are relatively close to one another. First, the storekeeper is becoming better acquainted with his trade; second, the trade is becoming better acquainted with his storekeeper. Mercantile specialists have tried to eliminate all sentiment in business but try as they may they find "personality" making inroads into their best laid theories. Familiarity either breeds confidence or contempt, and it educates the shoopkeeper into the individual tastes of buyers. We like to hear people call Lomond "our town" for we then feel their business loyalty allows them rights of possession.

some it is a foreboding of an inevitable panic, while to others it appears much like market manipulation by capitalistic interests. There is one certain thing and that is, the grain grower is not going to allow the market to go much below the guaranteed prices in the European markets without setting up a real lively howl. We cannot risk a forecast on the future of the market, but can say this much, that any further serious deflation of grain prices will have a demoralizing effect upon all commercial enterprises. Panics are relics of past ages of misunderstanding. Sane control of our affairs of state should carry us safely over the danger period.

Wednesday was about the liveliest day the old town has seen for some time. Elliott, Argue & Co. and Frank Vickers each had a car of fruit on the track and people were in for miles around taking up their supply for winter. The prices asked at Lomond are said to be very enticing, compared with that being charged in other towns.

observed that certain conditions almost invariably follow certain indications, but even when favorable indications are not apparent we are fool enough to hope that nature will prove an exception and get us by all right. In checking over the files of about a year we noticed an article drawing your attention to the influence of the weather conditions during the last week in December and the first two weeks in January on precipitation during the subsequent crop period. According to our theory, we need plenty of zero weather during this period to indicate satisfactory rainfall during June and July. On this indication, coupled with dry sloughs at seedtime, we would loan out money (providing, of course, that we had the money).

To all those whose faith in the country inclines to be shaky we would refer the fact that the Bank of Hamilton is purchasing a permanent office building for its Lomond branch. To an institution such as this a year or two of local misfortune is not taken too seriously. One has to look at the ultimate prospects through the law of averages. We are apt to be too short-sighted.

And indications point to the resumption of railway construction on this line next year.

What is Tailoring?

TAILORING is the feature that puts the style into your clothes and keeps it there. It is not necessary to have tailoring in order to have a garment made strong. It may not be necessary to have tailoring in order to get a fairly good fit. A modern machine with good thread will sew strong enough to out-wear most any cloth. If the cloth is cut to your measure it will make a fair fit. But the man of to-day wants something more. He wants STYLE! Not a fad or a freak---but a style that will express a personality, and that will endure. That is the feature that must be tailored into the garment by the hands of tailors.

During the next few days we will receive a large consignment of Men's Clothing, some suits made ready to jump into, others semi-ready that we fit to your measure in a few hours. Then we have a large range of samples you may select from, and we have your suit tailored to your measure by the House of Hobberlin. Fit and satisfaction guaranteed or your money back.
